Separately, I met with Will and discussed the fact that OCTO is for technology customer work at a level well above the SE Architects. He has done an amazing job of building the team, he is probably the best hiring manager in cloud. But outside of that, there is a lot of confusion about OCTO, it seems part Product management, part vertical, part product marketing. He agreed and we both agreed that we probably need to move that out so we have clear places for things. He was going to go away and think about it. I can never tell with Will but it seemed like an open and good meeting.
